

Galerie

Live Artfully

Annabelle Selldorf
Creates an Art-Filled
Masterpiece for Avid Collectors

Secrets to Designing
the Perfect
Outdoor Escape

Private Getaways
in Bordeaux, Umbria,
and San Miguel
de Allende

CREATIVE MINDS

30 Incredible Talents Using Their Genius to Change the World

SPRING 2021
ISSUE N° 21

Dine Out terrazzo table by Rodolfo Dordoni for Cassina; cassina.com

Chopstix side chair by Paola Navone for Janus et Cie; janusetcie.com

Sonoran side table by Holly Hunt; hollyhunt.com

Martyn Lawrence Bullard conceived this Bali-inspired home in Malibu, which features large doors for a seamless flow between the indoors and out.

OUTDOOR DINING

In the COVID era, creating more niches for outdoor entertainment has been on almost every client's wish list. Bullard has seen an uptick in requests for dining cabanas, Brooke and Steve Giannetti are building more outdoor screening spaces with radiant floor heating, and Montoya is currently at work on a Hudson Valley home's firepit that seamlessly blends with nature. "A big request is to have diversity in the outdoors," says Emil Humbert, whose Monaco-based firm, Humbert & Poyet, has even gone so far as to install a piano outside a beachside cabin. "Now people are asking for a reading corner or a place for meditation. We are doing a house near Provence, and they asked for five different dining areas."

"We have two areas we like for dining outside," says Ingraio of the East Hampton estate he shares with Randy Kemper. "One is under an antique dome; the other is in our lily pad garden, where we have a pergola and a dining table that seats 14."

At her Hamptons home, Charlotte Moss used a mix of flora and furniture to define moments throughout her three acres. "I have benches everywhere, but you can't see them because they're in different parts of the garden," says Moss, whose latest book, Charlotte Moss Flowers (Rizzoli), is out this spring. "There's a Regency bench in my obelisk garden and a bench near my husband's putting area, at the end of my allée, and in the kitchen garden. It's really about hospitality, inviting people to those places and just giving them a place to pause or go hide."

Desmond occasional chair by Palecek; palecek.com

Lawrence dining table by FBC London; fbc-london.com